WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN BUYING BRASS PRODUCTS

The Collingwood range of antique brass products are built using high quality materials and consequently have a long lifetime. Brass is a pure metal with natural colour. Over time, it will age and change colour in different environments.

This means that you may notice a patina effect, between fittings after they have been installed. If products are subjected to varied levels of sun and rain then they may age at different rates and vary in colour.

The varying effects that can be expected are shown in the image below, where you can see the patina at the end of the 7 year extended warranty period.

The original colour of brass can be revealed with proprietary readily available cleaning agents.
